

The Surprising Reason Why You Feel Fatigued Fat and Fuzzy-Brained

The little-known deficiency behind your sleeplessness... mysterious weight gain... cold hands and feet... muddled thinking... low energy levels... and more!

Dear frustrated friend,

Does this sound like you?

- ✓ You keep gaining weight – even though you diet and exercise.
- ✓ Your hands and feet are always cold – even in the summer.
- ✓ You're exhausted – but you can't sleep a wink.
- ✓ Your thinking is fuzzy – and you have the attention span of a gnat.
- ✓ And your energy levels have tanked.

You feel like your body is falling apart, but your doctor is no help at all. He simply chalks up your symptoms to old age or menopause – or, even worse, suggests they're “all in your head.”

Well, you're not alone because I've walked in your shoes! Tired, foggy, fat, frustrated and begging for answers—it got so bad I couldn't even leave the house without a jacket—in the dead of summer!

My name is Virginia Tims-Lawson. I've been a health researcher, writer and nutritional supplement formulator for nearly a decade. And I know quite a lot about natural remedies and alternative medicine.

But I—like you—still count on my family doctor when trouble comes calling...

But what if he's wrong?

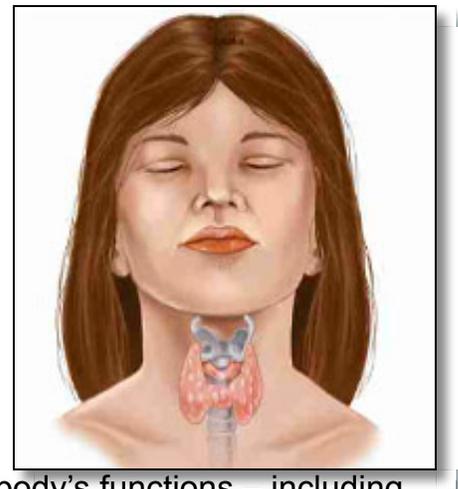

What if your symptoms have nothing to do with aging or even menopause?

The (surprising) reason you, me and over 32 million Americans are experiencing a wide range of health problems – including weight gain... memory troubles... lack of sex drive... blood sugar imbalances... unexplainable fatigue... and more – is this...

...Poor thyroid function.

That isn't quite what you expected to see, is it? But consider this...

Your thyroid is a butterfly-shaped gland located at the base of your neck – right below your Adam's apple. Its main job is to make the hormones that control many of your body's functions – including two critical hormones called triiodothyronine (T3) and thyroxine (T4).

These thyroid hormones have a lot of work to do. They regulate your heart, brain, lungs, liver, kidneys, muscles and every other organ and tissue in your body.

In other words, this one little gland affects the health of your entire body!

A properly functioning thyroid can give you...

- ✓ Strong metabolism that burns up calories fast...
- ✓ Boundless energy...
- ✓ Deeper, more restful sleep...
- ✓ More balanced moods...
- ✓ Sharper, quicker thinking....

- ✓ Comfortably warm hands and feet...
- ✓ Revved up sex drive...
- ✓ And much more!

But, unfortunately, this amazing hormone-maker is not invincible...

One sneaky mineral deficiency can wreak havoc on your thyroid – and steal your health

In order to function properly and produce those health-giving hormones, your thyroid needs an adequate supply of iodine.

And that's where you can run into trouble...

You see... the older you get, the harder it is for your body to metabolize iodine. So your iodine levels plummet – and your thyroid function begins to slow down.

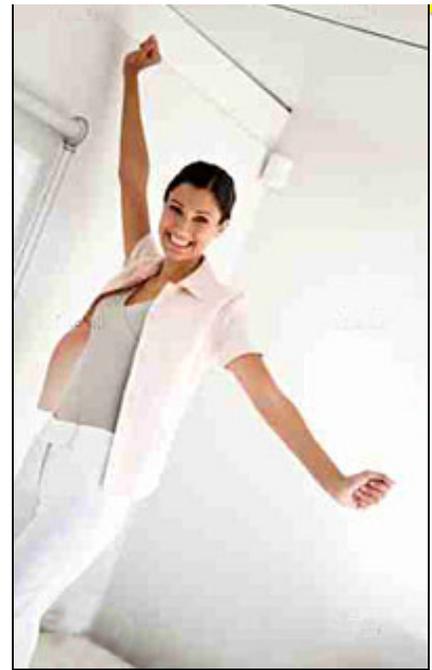

But this isn't just a problem for the older folks among us. Iodine deficiency is practically becoming a world-wide epidemic...

The World Health Organization (WHO) reports that 72% of the world's population is not getting enough iodine for proper thyroid function.

According to the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey I (NHANES), iodine levels have dropped a whopping 50% in the U.S. alone over the last 30 years!

And if you think those statistics are alarming, you should check out the results of the study conducted at The Center for Holistic Medicine in West Bloomfield, Michigan. After examining 5,000 patients, the medical director Dr. David Brownstein found...

96% of all people tested are iodine deficient!

Warning Signs of an Underactive Thyroid

(put a check next to the box for each of your symptoms)

- Unexplainable weight gain that's difficult to lose
- Feeling cold all year round
- Joint discomfort
- Occasional constipation
- Brittle hair and nails
- Menstrual cycle irregularities
- Low sex drive
- Fatigue
- Muscle aches
- Occasional low moods

That's a serious problem, because every cell in your body needs and uses iodine.

And no organ uses more iodine than your thyroid.

That's why – when your iodine levels are too low – your thyroid is the first to take the hit. And you feel the results fast...

...The weight starts piling on... sleep refuses to come... your memory fails... and your sex drive vanishes.

The next thing you know, you're sitting in your doctor's office in a backless paper gown, searching for answers.

You may be tempted to blame your symptoms on aging. After all, iodine levels do drop in your body as you grow older.

But what if there are other reasons your iodine levels are too low for adequate thyroid function?

Five little-known Iodine-Blockers can bring your thyroid to its knees

Every single day, you expose yourself to seemingly "harmless" foods and environmental substances that actually hinder your body's ability to process iodine.

And they are probably in your house – either in your kitchen or bathroom – this very minute.

These surprising iodine-blockers can take a toll on your thyroid's health – and make you feel worse than ever.

So it's time to do a little "house-cleaning," starting with...

- Forgetfulness
- Distracted easily
- Loss of eyebrow hair
- Dry, flaky skin
- Bruising easily
- Anxiety
- Occasional headaches

If you are experiencing 3 or more of these symptoms, your thyroid may be to blame. Keep reading to learn more...

Thyroid on the Blink? Avoid These Foods...

- ✗ Soy-containing foods like soy milk, tofu, tempeh and soy sauce.
- ✗ Cruciferous vegetables such as broccoli, turnips, cabbage, mustard, kale, bok choy, and more. These foods may be eaten in small amounts, but they should always be cooked.
- ✗ Lima beans, millet, peaches, peanuts, pine nuts, radishes, spinach, strawberries, sweet potatoes, and tapioca.

- ✘ Refined sugar and processed foods containing sugar in its many forms – such as fructose, sucrose, and high fructose corn syrup.
- ✘ Dairy products should only be consumed in small amounts.
- ✘ Wheat and wheat-containing products like pasta and gravy.
- ✘ Commercial baked goods containing bromine.

Iodine-Blocker #1: Soy Products

For years you've been hearing about how great soy is for your health.

Among other things, it's supposed to relieve the hot flashes and night sweats associated with menopause... help lower your cholesterol... and boost your heart health.

But if you're having trouble with your thyroid, soy can make a bad situation even worse.

Soy-based products like soy milk... tofu... tempeh... and soy "burgers"... contain isoflavones that act as "goitrogens" – which can suppress the function of your thyroid gland by hindering your body's ability to use iodine properly.

For example, the soy isoflavone called genistein can block the enzyme thyroid peroxidase from adding iodine into your thyroid hormones. That can reduce your thyroid hormone output – and put your metabolism and overall health completely out of whack.

Goitrogens get their name from the word "Goiter"

What's a goiter? It's an enlargement of your thyroid gland due to iodine deficiency. Sometimes, it causes swelling in the base of your neck around your voice box.

Iodine-Blocker #2: Cruciferous Vegetables

Your mother always made you eat your broccoli and Brussels sprouts – and now you find out they can disrupt your thyroid’s ability to produce hormones?

Ironic, but true. Cruciferous vegetables like broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, turnips and kale contain goitrogens that block thyroid peroxidase – just like the soy isoflavone does.

That can do a number on your thyroid function, but that’s not all...

These goitrogens also disrupt messages sent across the membranes of your thyroid cells.

Now you may be thinking you now have a great excuse to NOT eat your veggies. But you’re not going to get off the hook that easily...

You can deactivate the goitrogens in cruciferous vegetables simply by cooking or steaming them. So you can still enjoy the healthy benefits of these vegetables – without messing up your thyroid.

Iodine-Blocker #3: Bromine and Bromides

Did you know that iodine was once used for bread-making? It was removed from bread several decades ago and replaced with bromides instead – because of the fear of people consuming too much iodine.

But bromides aren’t only used in bread and baked goods. You can also find them added as “brominated vegetable oil” to beverages such as Mountain Dew, Orange Gatorade and Sun Drop.

The widespread use in a variety of grocery items gives you heavy exposure to bromides – which is bad news for your health. Not only are bromides somewhat toxic, but they interfere with your body’s uptake and usage of iodine – and jeopardize your thyroid’s health.

Can’t Lose Weight? DON’T Do This...

If your low thyroid levels have caused you to gain weight, don’t starve yourself in an attempt to lose those extra pounds. It won’t work! Dropping your calorie intake to under 1,200 calories daily will just slow your metabolism down even more. Your body will hold onto fat and fluid instead of letting it go... you’ll be too tired to exercise... and you’ll end up gaining even more weight!

Iodine-Blocker #4: Chlorine

It's not surprising that chlorine is one of the most commonly manufactured chemicals in the U.S. It's used to make pesticides, rubber and solvents... kill harmful bacteria in drinking water and swimming pools... and eliminate germs as a household bleach.

In gas form, chlorine is poisonous and can be potentially used in chemical terrorism.

Because chlorine is added to most water supplies by law, you're exposed to this iodine-replacing agent every time you drink from the tap or take a shower. And with every sip of water and dip in the pool, chlorine disrupts iodine adsorption in your body – making it next to impossible for your hard-working thyroid to do its job.

Iodine-Blocker #5: Fluoride

Like chlorine, fluoride seems to be everywhere. It's lurking in your toothpaste, mouthwash and public water supply. It's worked its way into food products made with fluoridated water. You can even find it in your teabags!

The problem is... fluoride doesn't only "replace" iodine in your body. It's also a known endocrine disrupter. As such, it can mess up your entire endocrine system – including your thyroid, adrenals, pancreas, and pituitary gland.

It even affects your bones, brain and blood sugar levels. But when it comes to your thyroid, fluoride is especially destructive:

- ✗ It displaces and even neutralizes iodine in your body, so it's not available for your thyroid to use.

Fluoride Shockers

Did you know...

- Most developed countries do not add fluoride to their water. Americans drink more fluoridated water than the rest of the world – combined!
- There is NO difference in tooth decay between countries that fluoridate their water and countries that don't.
- 40% to 80% of American teenagers show signs of "dental fluorosis" caused by fluoride overexposure during the first eight years of their life. Too much fluoride in childhood damages tooth enamel, causing white spots and streaks...

- ✘ It damages the cells of your thyroid gland.
- ✘ It disrupts conversion from the inactive form of the thyroid hormone (T4) to the active form (T3) – which further interferes with your thyroid function.

splotches... brown stains... and pitting.

- Swallowing fluoride provides little benefit to your teeth – because its contact with your teeth is so brief.

Thanks to the effects of fluoride and the other iodine-blockers, you can eat iodine-rich foods like fish, seaweed and some cheeses – and still suffer from a sluggish thyroid.

Thyroid-Suppressing SOAP?

The anti-bacterial soap by your bathroom sink probably contains triclosan, a chemical used to help reduce or prevent bacterial contamination. Triclosan is commonly added to soaps, toothpastes and hair products – but it can also be found in furniture, clothing and toys.

Studies are now finding that this germ-killing chemical has harmful effects on your thyroid:

- ➔ A 2010 study published in Toxicological Sciences found triclosan suppresses the thyroid hormone in rats. (Plus, it mimicked estrogen in the body, which is known to increase breast cancer risk.)
- ➔ Researchers at the University of Victoria in British Columbia discovered that exposure to triclosan disrupts thyroid-associated gene expression in frogs.
- ➔ Another study found that triclosan decreases circulating concentrations of the thyroid hormone thyroxine (T4) in rats.

In a nutshell, triclosan is bad news for your thyroid. If you see it listed on a label, just put the product back on the shelf.

It's no wonder you've been feeling so lousy...

Your poor thyroid gland is practically under assault from all sides!

It's no wonder you've been experiencing...

- ▶ Unwanted weight gain
- ▶ Low energy
- ▶ Brain fog
- ▶ Restless sleep
- ▶ Nonexistent sex drive
- ▶ And more!

Your thyroid has been desperately sending out signals that something is wrong.

The question is... what can you do about it?

You could go to your doctor and ask him to do a thyroid hormone test to see how well this gland is working.

But the problem is... thyroid tests aren't always accurate. The production, conversion and utilization of thyroid hormone in your body involve several complex steps. A malfunction in any of these steps can cause your thyroid to run amok – but it may not show up on standard lab tests.

Your doctor would take one look at the lab results and tell you nothing's wrong with your thyroid. And you're stuck feeling fat, irritable, forgetful and cold – with no relief in sight.

Let me suggest a better way...

Feed your body the nutrients your thyroid needs to THRIVE!

If your thyroid is on the fritz, it can negatively affect all aspects of your health – not only your weight.

You become unexplainably tired and irritable. Your hands and feet can't get warm. Your hair and nails are brittle and dull. Your joints hurt. And you can't think straight.

Your quality of life goes downhill – fast.

That's why I put our research team to work to uncover nature's most critical and powerful nutrients for boosting your thyroid health – so you can feel better fast.

At-Home Test for Sluggish Thyroid

If you're experiencing low energy, intolerance to cold, brain fog, or difficulty managing your weight, your thyroid may be to blame.

Not sure? Take this simple test:

1. Shake an old-fashioned mercury thermometer down to 95 degrees before going to bed and place it within easy reach on your night stand.

We've developed a breakthrough, all-natural formula called Peak Thyroid Support to help your body produce optimal levels of thyroid hormones – especially T3 and T4 that are so crucial for your metabolism and overall health.

Peak Thyroid Support from my company Peak Wellness Nutrition contains exact doses of the essential nutrients your thyroid needs to be healthy and energized, such as...

2. In the morning – before getting out of bed – lay horizontal and place the thermometer in your mouth under your tongue. Leave it there for approximately 10 minutes.
3. Record your temperature.
4. Repeat every morning for seven consecutive days.

If your average temperature is constantly low – 97.8 degrees Fahrenheit or below – then there's a good chance you have an underactive thyroid.

IODINE

According to the peer-reviewed journal Endocrine Practice, an iodine deficiency can trigger a number of health issues – including an enlarged thyroid... fatigue... fuzzy thinking... sluggish metabolism... and a host of other health issues.

Getting enough iodine for healthy thyroid function can be a challenge for two reasons;

1. Your body can't produce iodine on its own, so you need to provide it through a healthy, well-balanced diet and supplements.
2. Iodine blockers in your food and environment constantly bombard your body – and starve your thyroid of the iodine it so desperately needs.

That's why it was critically important to formulate Peak Thyroid Support with the precise amount of iodine your thyroid needs to function like a champ.

In fact, it wasn't enough to just give you iodine. We dedicated hours to searching for the best, most potent, most natural sources of iodine known to mankind. And we found them...

It turns out that kelp and bladderwrack – two brown seaweeds – are amazing sources of natural iodine. They can give your thyroid the fuel it requires to create the critical T3 and T4 hormones you need to feel and look better.

But that's not all...

This dynamic duo of seaweeds packs a wonderful bonus – it contains nutrients that also provide a powerful antioxidant and anti-inflammatory boost to your entire body.

No thyroid supplement would be effective without them – so we made sure to include both kelp and bladderwrack in Peak Thyroid Support.

L-TYROSINE

Your thyroid gland needs more than just iodine to pump out healthy thyroid hormones.

The amino acid tyrosine partners with iodine to create those T3 and T4 hormones you need to efficiently metabolize calories into energy.

Without tyrosine, your metabolism will plummet – and you will pack on the pounds.

Tyrosine also helps produce the stress hormones epinephrine and norepinephrine – as well as the mood-influencing chemical dopamine. Studies show that supplementing with tyrosine may help memory and cognitive performance in individuals under psychological stress and relieve fatigue.

So tyrosine helps relieve the mood-damaging, memory-stealing effects of a struggling thyroid fast.

But the most important thing to remember is...

Your thyroid needs BOTH iodine and tyrosine to produce those healthy T3 and T4 hormones – and you get BOTH in every serving of Peak Thyroid Support.

SELENIUM

When your thyroid creates the T3 and T4 hormones, they are released into your bloodstream to regulate your metabolism.

Now T3 is the active thyroid hormone. It's up to five times more potent than T4. But that doesn't mean T4 isn't important...

Fluoride Shockers

Why Selenium is so Vital for Thyroid Health

Any deficiency of selenium in your body will hinder T3 production and cause annoying,

...Without the conversion of T4 into T3, your metabolism does not increase.

That's why you need selenium.

This naturally-occurring trace mineral helps convert relatively inactive T4s to the active thyroid hormone T3 – boosting your metabolism and sending your energy levels soaring.

Selenium also acts as a powerful antioxidant – helping to wipe out health-stealing free radicals in your body. Plus, it forms a natural synergy with other nutrients – helping them work better together.

That's why we simply had to include selenium in Peak Thyroid Support. Your thyroid can't function without it.

health-sapping hypothyroidism symptoms – even if your the body is producing enough T4.

VITAMIN B12

Vitamin B12 is found in every cell of your body.

It helps form red blood cells... produce and regulate your DNA... develop healthy nerve cells... boost cellular metabolism and energy production... and process protein, carbohydrates and fats in your body.

Adequate levels of vitamin B12 are absolutely necessary for you to experience good health.

The problem is... if you're struggling with a low functioning thyroid, there's a good chance your body is running low on vitamin B12.

In a 2008 study published in The Journal of the Pakistan Medical Association, researchers tested hypothyroid patients – and as many as 40% of them also suffered from a vitamin B12 deficiency.

Low levels of vitamin B12 can cause fatigue, depression, sleeplessness, memory loss and more – which are very similar to the symptoms you suffer when your thyroid isn't working right.

Peak Thyroid Support contains the vitamin B12 you need to rid you of those life-draining symptoms and boost

How to Recognize a Vitamin B12 Deficiency

The most common symptoms include:

- ✓ Numbness or tingling in your hands, legs or feet
- ✓ Balance problems
- ✓ Anemia
- ✓ Swollen, inflamed tongue
- ✓ Yellowed skin
- ✓ Trouble thinking, reasoning and remembering
- ✓ Paranoia or hallucinations
- ✓ Weakness
- ✓ Fatigue

your overall health. Click Here to order Peak Thyroid Support today and claim up to 6 FREE gifts!

ZINC

If your levels of zinc are too low, they can contribute to your underactive thyroid.

That's because – like selenium – zinc helps convert your T4 hormone to the more active T3. And that helps keep your metabolism running at a healthy pace.

Zinc also releases the vitamin A stored in your liver to boost thyroid function even more... regulates your immune system... helps heal wounds... supports male and female fertility... boosts brain function... and elevates moods.

Because it's needed by every cell in your body – and because it's easy to become zinc-deficient – we made sure to include this wonder-mineral in Peak Thyroid Support.

COPPER

There's only one problem with taking zinc to improve your thyroid function...

Penny For Your Thoughts

An August 2010 rat study found that copper is important for normal brain development. A deficiency hinders the hypothalamus' ability to regulate thyroid hormone effectively.

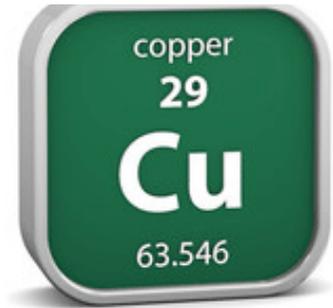

Researchers also discovered that copper-deficient pregnant rats give birth to baby rats that produce 48% less thyroid hormone than those born from healthy mothers.

...Zinc can deplete your system of copper!

And that's bad news, because copper is important for healthy thyroid function. It helps stimulate your thyroid and, at the same time, protects your body from too much thyroxin building up in your blood.

Plus, copper helps control the amount of calcium in your blood, which is necessary for the absorption of minerals and permeability of your cell membranes.

Whenever you take zinc, you should supplement with copper as well. That's why we included this thyroid-helper in our Peak Thyroid Support formula.

MANGANESE

Manganese is a trace mineral that plays many roles in your body – such as helping to form connective tissue, bones and sex hormones... helping regulate fat and carbohydrate metabolism, calcium absorption, and blood sugar levels... and supporting healthy brain and nerve function.

But that's not all...

Your thyroid gland requires manganese to produce T4. So a deficiency in this mighty mineral can hurt thyroid function.

Because as many as 37% of Americans don't get enough manganese in their diets, we've made sure to include the optimal amount you need for thyroid health in Peak Thyroid Support.

ASHWAGANDHA ROOT

Ashwagandha root has a 3,000 year history as a tonic herb. It's been found in studies to be helpful for anti-aging, cognitive disorders and Parkinson's disease.

It's also been shown to support your thyroid in three powerful ways:

- ✓ Thyroid-Protector – As a strong antioxidant, ashwagandha protects your thyroid from free radical damage – allowing it to function better.
- ✓ Immune Modulator – Ashwagandha helps reduce the autoimmune inflammation that can cause under-active thyroid.
- ✓ Stress Hormone Optimizer – If your adrenal glands produce too little or too much stress hormone, it can wreak havoc on your thyroid function. Ashwagandha helps optimize the amount of stress hormone produced – which takes a lot of stress off your thyroid!

Supporting your adrenal gland health is critical for optimizing your thyroid function. That's why ashwagandha is an essential ingredient in our Peak Thyroid Support formula.

SCHIZANDRA

Schizandra is a medicinal plant that's been popular in China for about 2,000 years.

It's been used as an "adaptagen" for increasing resistance to disease and stress, boosting energy, and increasing physical performance and endurance. But schizandra's benefits don't stop there...

As an antioxidant and anti-inflammatory, schizandra prevents early aging... improves skin moisture and tone... and protects the liver.

Plus, it helps reduce fatigue... boost memory... and improve concentration.

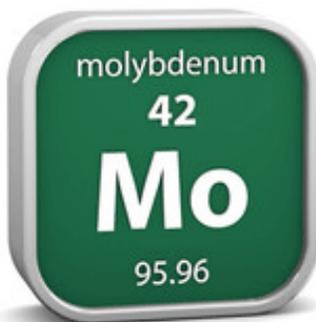

In other words, it helps relieve the miserable symptoms of a poorly-functioning thyroid – earning it a place in our powerful Peak Thyroid Support formula.

Better than Coffee?

Schizandra stimulates your central nervous system without the excitatory effect you get from caffeine. That means... you can get a mental boost without the jitters.

MOLYBDENUM

Molybdenum is an element that's present in very small amounts in your body.

It supports the function of your nervous system and your kidneys. Plus it plays a role in energy production on a cellular level.

Molybdenum is also a cofactor involved in the metabolism of your thyroid. Basically, your thyroid cannot function properly without it.

That's why this essential element is included in Peak Thyroid Support.

CAYENNE PEPPER

This spicy herb has been used for centuries to treat a variety of illnesses – including heartburn, gout, flatulence, sore throat, tonsillitis, and even scarlet fever.

It's an abundant source of vitamins A, C, E, B6 and K. Plus, it's loaded with minerals like iron, sulphur, magnesium, calcium and phosphorus. In fact, cayenne's high mineral content makes it an effective treatment for blood sugar problems, gas, joint problems and pancreatic and throat disorders.

But the benefits of cayenne pepper don't stop there. This mighty herb also helps...

- ✓ Stimulate the flow of stomach secretions and saliva to optimize your digestion – and eliminate stomach aches, gas and cramps...
- ✓ Boost your metabolism and decrease your appetite, and...
- ✓ Rejuvenate your cardiovascular system – lowering cholesterol... normalizing blood pressure... and dissolving excess blood clots.

But cayenne pepper does something else that's truly remarkable...

It improves the effectiveness of other herbs.

Cayenne acts as a catalyst – intensifying the beneficial effects of other nutrients by ensuring rapid and thorough delivery of their active components to the important functional centers of your body.

In other words, this amazing herb-intensifier boosts the thyroid-supporting power of the other ingredients in Peak Thyroid Support – so you can finally manage your weight... increase your energy... and get your life back again. Including it was pure genius!

NEVER get an X-ray at your dentist's office WITHOUT this...

You know that lead apron you put on before dental x-rays? Well, there's a little flap that can be lifted up and wrapped around your neck to protect your thyroid.

Surprised? Chances are you've never seen it before – because most dentists never bother to use it!

Radiation exposure hurts your thyroid. So that flap can be a real thyroid-saver.

Make sure you request a "thyroid guard" or "thyroid collar" every time you get an x-ray of any kind – even mammograms. You'll protect your thyroid – and safeguard your health.
